HOMESEEKERS FIND ELDORADO NEAR LAS CRUCES

Mesilla Valley Blooms Like the Rose When Water Is Turned Over Rich Soil, and Residents Rejoice.

(Special Correspondence to Herald.)

Las Cruces, N. M., Oct. 31.—Hundreds of prospective homesekers are flocking to the valley of the Mesilla and securing farming lands under the great Elephant Butte dam. One hundred and thirteen thousand acres of river alluvial soil will be irrigated by this great enterprise in this valley alone. This is the largest enterprise of its kind in the United States and second largest in the world. Uncle Sam is backing this project at a cost of $9,000,000.

In the Mesilla valley, as nearly all other parts of New Mexico, irrigation is the basis of all crops. Without water, farming could not exist, and with water an acre used on a strip of land, people flock to it, settle and are prosperous. The chemist calls it J. O. Y.

With the influx of emigration hundreds of acres of raw land are being cleared and put to the plow. Where mesquites, greasewood, and turnills once held sway, large fields of alfalfa, grain, cantaloupes and orchards are to be found. Other crops are being introduced; new enterprises are being started; outside capital is coming in and the great Mesilla valley is taking on an air of prosperity never equaled in its history.

Sunday morning Rev. Thomas A. Mitchell, pastor of the Presbyterian church, gave a brief report of the Sunday meeting held in Tucson, Arizona. At this service four new members were received into the church.

The Presbyterian Christian endeavor society will give a Hallowe'en social in the manse on Tuesday evening.

Mr. Herms and Rev. Hage of Elephant Butte spent Saturday and Sunday in this city.

Mrs. S. P. Kish of Kansas City is visiting her daughter, Mrs. H. M. McMillan here.

James S. Fletcher, a prominent attorney of Deming, spent part of last week in this city on legal business.

Mrs. Charles L. Post and two children are visiting Mrs. Post's sister in San Antonio, Texas.

Sunday morning the cornerstone of the Episcopal church at Mesilla Park was laid with most impressive services. The church building is well under way, the foundation being completed and the brick work started. This building will cost $5,000, will be equipped with a modern pipe organ, etc. The old church building will be used for a Sunday school building.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Lohman are spending several weeks in Mineral Wells, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Len Hensel, son and two daughters, are visiting Mrs. Hensel's sister, Mrs. Henry Stiles.

Robinson's Quality Drug store has moved into the Murphy building, opposite the postoffice.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hague have moved into the cottage recently occupied by Mrs. Hollingsworth.

The Stewart Furniture company has moved into the south half of the new Murphy building on Main street.

Mrs. Edna Sherwood died at her home on Miranda avenue at the age of 73. Mrs. Sherwood has resided here for the past six years, coming here from Lebanon, Ohio. For the past two years she has been a victim of the white plague. The remains were shipped to the old home and are at rest in Miami cemetery.

A large delegation of Republicans held a big political rally at Organ the fore part of the week. Six autos of ladies and gentlemen took the sixteen mile ride and enjoyed a very enthusiastic meeting. It is believed that every voter in the town of Organ was present.

LONG CONVENTION HAS RESULTS

Harmonious Gathering of Mora County Republicans Results in Nomination of Strong Ticket.

Mora, N. M., Oct. 31.—Following a long but entirely harmonious convention the Republicans of Mora county adjourned at 2 o'clock Tuesday morning after having selected a strong ticket. There was much enthusiasm during the sessions, which began on the 25th. During the closing hours speeches were made by Governor William J. Mills, David J. Leahy, Charles W. G. Ward, Charles A. Spies and O. A. Larrasolo of Las Vegas.

Following is the entire county ticket:

REFORM SCHOOL IS PROSPERING

Prisoners Are Released After Term of Good Behavior;
Truck Farm Is Paying Proposition.

Springer, N. M., Oct. 31.—The reform school in this city is prospering. The farming and gardening done by the inmates has been unusually successful, giving a large profit to the institution and also providing a healthy means of employment for the inmates.

Two boys were received at the New Mexico reform school in Springer last week and one released, having served his time.

Jay Gibson, aged 17, sentenced to four to five years for stealing a narcotyle, and Clyde Blodsoe, aged 18, convicted of larceny of a horse, sentenced to one to five years,

were delivered to Superintendent

Kirkpatrick Tuesday by Sheriff

Cooper of Eddy county.

Willie Kirkpatrick, who served a year from McKinley county on the charge of incorrigibility, was released

Thursday when the young man left for his home at Gallup. Willie made a very good prisoner.

At the institution garden, on less than a quarter of an acre, there was potted Wednesday over two tons of cabages.

School at the institution school building was commenced Monday with Mrs. Marion Walters of French

as instructor. Mrs. Walters is so far very well pleased with the work.

VILLIFICATION AND ABUSE NO ARGUMENT

The time has come by when personal abuse of a candidate can win

The thinking voters of this state will need something more than unsubstantiated charges against H. O. Bursum to induce them to vote against him. Villification is not argument.

Personal abuse of a candidate does not influence honest and patriotic voters—Taos Valley News.

There is little danger from a cold or from an attack of the grippe except when followed by pneumonia, and this never happens when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is used.

This remedy has won its great reputation

MODEL TOWN BUILT BY SAGE MILLIONS

Forest Hills Gardens is Built With Idea of Giving American Capital Lesson in ERECTing Suburbs.

New York, Nov. 1.—The model village erected by the Russell Sage Foundation to give American capital an object lesson in "safe and sane" suburban development, has just been thrown open to the public. The immediate object is to attract to good homes families of moderate means; the ultimate and chief object, though, is to show real estate operators with millions of capital that beauty of design, the use of fire-proof building material and an abundance of playground space are not inconsistent with fair profits.

Forest Hills Gardens, as the village is called, is located on the newly-equipped electric line of the Long Island railroad, two miles west of Jamaica, within fifteen minutes' run of the commercial center of Manhattan. Covering 140 acres, and laid out from end to end as a high-class settlement, its appeal is to the salaried man rather than to the wage earner. The houses are built of fire-proof hollow tile and are designed in conformity with a definite architectural plan, in contrast to the haphazard manner in which houses of widely varying designs are jammed against one another in the streets of American cities.

To determine upon a suitable building material, the architects conducted elaborate fire and strength tests at a laboratory built specially for the purpose. They tested stone, concrete, brick, terra cotta hollow tile—every material that could be used in home-building.

It is the street system of the model town that will most interest those accustomed to the right-angle plan that prevails in most of our cities. All streets not necessary for general traffic are laid out so as to disperse their use as thoroughfares. They are curved, not very wide, some swerving more than others, according to the topography of the locality. Because these roadways are narrow, more room is left for front gardens. Instead of the monotony of the ordinary wind-swept, dead-straight stretches of macadam or asphalt, each street will have a distinct individuality.

In most suburban developments around New York the promoters have been parsimonious of play-ground space. They regard the saving aside of land for this purpose waste. The promoters of Forest Hill gardens propose to demonstrate that such a view is short-sighted, because the devotion of plots to park purposes adds more to the value of adjacent properties than the cost of the playgrounds so set aside.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets do not stick or grippe and may be taken with perfect safety by the most delicate woman or the youngest child. The old and feeble will also find them a most valuable remedy for aiding and strengthening their weakened digestion and for regulating the bowels. For sale by all druggists.
